Current Comment

Organization is the salvation of mankind, and has been since the days when John Bearclaw called in the neighbors to help him beat off the attack of a sabre-tooth tiger. Labor has found life-saving strength in organization, and the time has come when fruit growers must organize or accept ruinous prices for their produce. Conditions existing today in the fruit market point the way, and some of the hitherto staunch independents have seen the light and will henceforth be found among the ranks of the association.

There is some chance that association members may take it on the chin this year, but they can hardly be hurt worse than those who lack the courage to "join up." Until the great majority of fruit growers see their way clear to join the California Prune and Apricot Growers association the independent packers will be in a position to create much dissatisfaction among the ranks, but when California growers present an organized front to the independent packers and the market in general, there will become possible the stabilization of prune and apricot prices which will assure the orchardist a fair return on his investment. Few growers now harbor the delusion that they are going to get rich in the fruit racket, but they are entitled to a living.

Aside from the many apparent ills of the fruit industry, the most common ailment, and the one which receives the least consideration, is the fact that orchardists are endeavoring to eke out a living on land that is altogether too high-priced for any kind of farming.

History is repeating itself. In the old days the Santa Clara valley was one vast wheat field. The time came when the land was called upon to provide homesites for a greater number of people, and the farmers, with their customary reluctance, moved over, and went to raising fruit. Again has arrived the time for a change. It won't be long now until land that in many cases is worth $3,000 an acre as homesites will not be able to produce enough to justify itself at $1,500 as prune orchard. But growers, imbued since childhood with the psychology of the land, are loath to see the light.

Eventually, however, they will be forced to the realization that the climate of the Santa Clara valley is altogether too good for old King Prune and Madame Apricot—and the court jester, Two-Acre Chicken Ranch—and they will start to build for a vast community of homes, the occupants of which will work in the Bay Region, in which San Jose will be included as soon as it secures a deep-water port. And there we'll have it—desert to wheat to orchards to homes. Somebody will make a lot of money out of the deal, but it won't be those who haven't sufficient vision to see beyond the sale of a two-acre chicken ranch to an eminently undesireable.

We of the north may snicker at the activities of southern real estate dealers, but we've got to hand it to them for all of that. They, with a climate inferior to that of the Santa Clara valley, have induced more people to settle around Los Angeles within the past ten years than Santa Clara valley brokers have been able to spirit here during a considerably longer period of time.

One of the first moves in building a community to be the center of a suburb is the erection of suitable schools. Here again we must have organization and co-operation. Think it over. The valley is eventually to see homes where prune trees grew before. Are we going to be among the progressives?

Dr. And Mrs. Karl Hazeltine Entertain Local Grangers

At a regular meeting of the Orchard City Grang held at Odd Fellows hall last Tuesday evening, Mrs. Jessie McChesney, lecturer, introduced Dr. and Mrs. Karl Hazeltine, who contributed heavily to the evening's entertainment. Dr. Hazeltine, faculty member of the San Jose State college, gave a talk on insects and reptiles, illustrated with moving pictures, and Mrs. Hazeltine sang "Memories," "Desert Moonlight" and "Everyone Loves Carmelita." The words she sang were original with Mrs. Hazeltine, and she accompanied herself.

The business meeting was presided over by Worthy Master W. H. Woodbury. It was announced at this time that a harvest feast will be held Tuesday evening, June 23, following which a class of candidates will be initiated in the third and fourth degrees. S. N. Hedegard is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Announcement was also made of the final meeting of the Grange Auxiliary, which was held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Mitchell on Toyon avenue.

MOTHER OF MISS CLARIBEL BOESCH DIES SUNDAY, 14TH

Mrs. Mary Jane Boesch, a native of New York, mother of Miss Claribel Boesch, local high school teacher, passed away at her home in San Jose Sunday after a lengthy illness. Born in Albany Nov. 17, 1855, and married in Chicago Sept. 13, 1881 to J. O. Boesch, she and her husband would have celebrated their golden wedding anniversary within three months.

Mrs. Boesch is survived by her husband and another daughter, Mrs. Matilda Wendt.

Law And Order Upheld Here On Graduation Nite

Local law had a busy time of it Friday night while graduation exercises were taking place in the grammar school auditorium. Constable Frank Coupland surprised two men who were trying to steal an automobile, and fired several shots into the air in an attempt to halt the would-be thieves. They escaped into a nearby orchard.

Shortly after this occurrence, Harry Evans, night patrolman, offered himself as opponent to Francis Lyons, 25, who loudly asserted that he could "lick any cop in the place." A large group of interested spectators were very much disapointed when the difference of opinion was settled without blows.

Two lads caught pilfering parked cars were turned over to their parents by Patrolman Evans.

MISS HELEN FERRO IS CANDIDATE FOR JULY 4TH HONORS

Miss Helen Ferro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antone Ferro of Central avenue, will uphold the honor of Campbell in the Sunnyvale Goddess of Liberty contest which culminates at the Fourth of July celebration to be staged in the latter city, it was announced, following the withdrawal of Josephine LaBarbera, former candidate.

The winner of the contest rules the Sunyvale celebration as "Goddess of Liberty" and receives a cash prize of $150. She will also be the chief figure on the title float in the grand parade which will be staged on the Fourth. Other candidates will also ride on the float.

Miss Ferro said yesterday that she was out to win if possible; at any rate, she intends to let the valley know that Campbell is on the map.

Such a contest is extremely difficult, and since Miss Ferro has consented to do her best for Campbell, it is up to the Campbell community to do its best for Miss Ferro.

When the local candidate starts selling votes it is believed that she will meet the cheerful support of Campbellites. Every contestant wins a prize of some kind, so no candidate will work in vain, and all will ride on the title float. Considerable publicity will accrue to the community whose candidate is successful—so let Campbell go after that publicty by purchasing votes from Miss Helen Ferro.

Graduation Rites Witnessed By 1200 People Friday

Exercises witnessed by a crowd of 1,200 persons marked the graduation of the 67 members of the Campbell high school senior class Friday night at the grammar school auditorium. It was one of the largest crowds ever to attend a local graduation, according to school authorities.

Following the ceremonies, graduates were guests of honor at an alumni dance held in the high school annex, at which were present not only alumni but other students of the high school and interested townsfolk. Dan Yeager, alumni president, was in charge of the dance.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Germany's Woes Engage Attention of World's Statesmen—Young Plan and War Debts Involved —Economies for Our Navy.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

F. M. Sackett

THAT conference at Chequers participated in by Chancellor Bruening, Foreign Minister Curtius, Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson has given rise, naturally, to vast quantities of comment, criticism and speculation. The gentlemen named agreed to answer no questions as to the topics of conversation and the results, giving out a noncommittal communique which said Great Britain and Germany would "endeavor to deal with the present crisis in close collaboration with other governments concerned." Of course reparations was one of the chief topics, and the Germans stressed Germany's alleged inability to carry on under the Young plan. Moreover—and this is of direct interest to the United States—Bruening was understood to have asked the aid of the British statesmen in sounding Germany's creditor nations, especially America, on the possibility of deferring reparations payments. The underlying hope of Germany, as expressed by the Berlin press, is that Uncle Sam will consent to a revision or cancellation of reparations, and the old proposition of cancellation of all the war debts owed to America naturally bobbed up again.

Bruening and Curtius, returning home on the Europa, were pleased to have as a fellow passenger Frederic M. Sackett, the American ambassador to Berlin, and it was believed they took the opportunity to tell him frankly what they hoped America would do in the way of helping Germany out of its slough of despond. Also, they are looking forward to conversations with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Secretary of State Stimson, both of whom are to be in Europe this summer. It was made plain to correspondents that the Germans hope to convince the Americans that, since Germany cannot now purchase raw materials from America, there is a direct connection between the economic crisis and reparations.

The French government, according to Foreign Minister Briand, will not be led into any international conference for the revision of the reparations scheme and the Young plan. Briand told the chamber of deputies that "there can be no question of revising the Young plan, since it has a definite character and contains in itself possibilities for Germany."

Chancellor Bruening's tax decrees, published just before he went to England, are denounced by nearly all the influential German newspapers as brutal, unjust and an imposition on the salaried and impoverished classes.

THERE are now 2,629,971 persons out of employment in Great Britain, according to official reports, the number having increased by 123,034 within a week. In Germany, though the jobless at the end of May numbered 4,067,000, conditions seemed to be improving, since about 322,000 of the unemployed found work during that month.

Secretary Adams

SECRETARY OF the Navy Charles Francis Adams, Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, and other high officials of the navy were the week-end guests of President Hoover at the Rapidan fishing camp, and immediately after returning to his office Mr. Adams called in all the chiefs of branches and told them they would have to formulate plans for greater economy in the department in order to comply with the wishes of the President. Among other promises of the secretary is the pledge to cut by $15,000,000 the appropriations voted for the year 1932 by congress; and this means the navy will have to get along on about $40,000,000 less than the amount voted by congress for naval activities during the present year.

Mr. Hoover asked the navy to abandon the island of Guam as a naval base, and this was agreed to although the saving there will not be large. Reductions in naval personnel at Guam have been going on for some time. At present the navy maintains 57 officers and 615 enlisted men and marines at this point. Of this number 170 enlisted men are stationed aboard the Penguin, a mine sweeper, and the Gold Star, a station ship.

PREMIER BENNETT of Canada told the house of commons that the imperial economic conference which was to have been held in Ottawa next August had been postponed until next year. He said Australia had asked this because of the uncertain position politically in that country, and that New Zealand had stated that parliament probably would be in session in August and it was doubtful whether a ministerial representative could be present.

The Canadian government communicated these representations to Great Britain and the other dominions and a postponement until 1932 was agreed upon.

MRS. ELLA A. BOOLE of Brooklyn, N. Y., was elected president of the World Woman's Christian Temperance union at its convention in Toronto. She has been vice president and succeeds Miss Anna Adams Gordon of Evanston, Ill., who was forced by illness to retire from the presidency after nine years in that office. Mrs. Louis McKinney of Claresholme, Alberta, was chosen first vice president. Mrs. Emilie J. Solomon, Cape Town, South Africa, and Miss Maria Sandstrom of Stockholm, were re-elected second and third vice presidents. Miss Agnes Black, England, retains an honorary secretaryship and Miss Margaret Muns of Evanston, Ill., was re-elected honorary treasurer.

George E. Q. Johnson

IF THE gangsters of Chicago are finally routed, much of the credit must be given to George E. Q. Johnson, United States attorney for that district. Already he has secured convictions against many of the "public enemies," and his latest major achievement is the indictment of number one on that unsavory list, Al Capone himself. "Scarface" is accused, as were most of the others, of defrauding the government by evading the payment of income taxes, and the federal prosecutors believe they have a sure case against him, so sure that they will not agree to leniency in case Capone pleads guilty, which is considered likely. The boss gangster surrendered promptly after the indictment was returned and was released on bonds. It is charged that he owes the government $215,000, and it was expected he would tender payment of the amount in the hope of mitigating his sentence.

Mr. Johnson's assistants, it was admitted, were having some difficulty in finding Capone's alleged hoarded wealth, for most of the properties which he is supposed to own are in the names of other persons. A Miami lawyer, who represented Capone on several occasions, has sued him for $50,000 for services and began legal proceedings to seize his Miami Beach mansion on an attachment.

Pope Pius XI

PROSPECTS for renewed peace between the Italian government and the Vatican were bright. Two notes and a memorandum from Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, were finally answered in a note which, though it proffered no formal apology for Fascist attacks on churches and churchmen, was regarded as conciliatory. The Italian government expressed regrets at the incidents, which, it said, were caused by Fascist reaction to news that Catholic Action was ploting against the Fascist regime, and promised to punish the guilty if they could be found and to try to prevent repetitions. The note then made two protests on behalf of the government. It repeated the charges of political anti-Fascist activity of Catholic Action, and it objected to the Vatican's efforts to enlist the sympathy of the whole world in its cause—this referring to the almost daily speeches made by Pope Pius.

Mussolini still insists on the dissolution of Catholic Action, and the pope has recognized this stand by starting the organization of new Catholic clubs throughout the country. Negotiations between Rome and the Vatican probably will be continued for some time and rupture of diplomatic relations which neither side wants, is no longer feared.

PHILADELPHIA was host during the week to some 8,000 physicians from all parts of the country, members of the American Medical association. For two days the house of delegates was busy determining matters of policy and electing officers, and the other three days saw the meetings of the fifteen scientific sections of the association, each of which represents a separate branch of medicine. Hundreds of papers were read and discussed and there were many clinical lectures by leading authorities.

INCREASE of crime in the United States, the reasons therefore and possible means of betterment are treated in a 300-page report by the Wickersham commission to President Hoover and by him given to the public. The appalling growth of criminality, according to the commission, is largely the result of ineffectiveness of criminal justice which is attributable to procedure unsuited to modern conditions, to incapacity of prosecutors, to the subjection of prosecutors to political organizations affiliated with criminals, and to the lack of scientific treatment of criminal tendencies of individuals in formative stages.

The commission declared it was in substantial accord with the following major findings of several state surveys:

"Juvenile delinquency is the heart of the problem of crime prevention.

"Careful working methods and administrative practices in nolles, acceptances of plea of lesser offense, and other forms of dismissals and dispositions without trial, whereby the responsibility for these dispositions will be definitely located, careful records will be required, and the disposition will be based on thorough inquiry and on definite principles.

"Abolition of requirement of grand jury indictment in every felony case.

"Right of the accused to waive trial by jury.

"Increase of judges' control over the conduct of the trial.

"Development toward centralized state supervision of the administration of criminal justice in all its parts."

Five recommendations are submitted "applicable generally to substantially all the states, pointed out the lines to be followed in attempts to better local systems of prosecution." These recommendations are:

"1. Elimination, so far as may be possible in our system of government, of political considerations in the selection and apopintment of federal district attorneys and prosecuting officers and of appointments based upon political activity or service.

"2. Better provision for the selection and tenure of prosecutors in the states and especially for the organization, personnel, tenure, and compensation of the staff of the prosecutor's office.

"3. Such an organization of the legal profession in each state as shall insure competency, character, and discipline among those who are engaged in the criminal courts.

"4. A systematized control of prosecutions in each state under a director of public prosecutions or some equivalent official, with secure tenure and concentrated and defined responsibility.

"5. Provision for legal interrogation of accused persons under suitable safeguards."

Archduke Otto

ZITA, former empress of Austria, was a visitor in Rome and aroused a great deal of interest and speculation concerning her purposes. She was granted an audience with Pope Pius and talked with him in private for nearly an hour, after which she had a long conversation with Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state. It was reported that Zita sought the aid of the Holy See in the restoration of her son, Archduke Otto, to the throne of Austria.

Another rumor in Rome was that Zita was there in the hope of arranging a marriage between Otto and Princess Maria, youngest daughter of the king and queen of Italy. In semi-official but well informed circles it was said no consideration would be given to such a proposal at the present time; but if the young archduke ever is permitted to mount the Austrian throne — which is unlikely — the house of Savoy might agree to the marriage.

TENNESSEE'S lower house has refused to impeach Gov. Henry H. Horton, rejecting all the eight articles offered by a committee, the charges in which grew out of the bank failures of last fall which tied up about $7,000,000 of state money. The Horton faction won by a vote of 53 to 45.

MAJ. MAURICE CAMPBELL, former prohibition administrator in New York, has announced that he has filed with President Hoover charges against Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury, formerly in charge of prohibition enforcement, whom he accuses of being derelict in his duty. Campbell says he made the complaint against Lowman some time ago and it was turned over to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who refused to take any action; so now he alleges in his letter to the President that Mr. Mellon took advantage of his official position to conceal facts and thus shield a government official "who is derelict in his office." Last year Campbell published a series of syndicated press articles which purported to show that Lowman had urged him to relax prohibition enforcement during the 1928 Presidential campaign.

GEN. CHIANG KAI-SHEK, head of the Chinese Nationalist government, believes the Communist bandit menace is the gravest problem facing the Chinese people; so he has taken the field personally against the robber bands that are terrorizing Kiangsi and Human provinces and has appealed to his fellow officers of the Nationalist army to give him all their help in the suppression of Communism. In a public statement General Chiang charged the Canton insurgents with making tools of the military forces regarding the recent Cantonese charges against himself that he was trying to become the military dictator. To refute these charges he promised that if he were successful in eradicating Communism he would divest himself of all military power and retire to his farm in Chekiang province. If he failed, he said, he would die on the battlefield.

THE ROADS: HERE AND THERE

Wawona Road Being Rapidly Improved

The driving time on the Wawona route from Fresno to Wawona has been cut to two and a half hours due to improvements already made to this route through relocation and new grades and alignment, acording to a report received by the National Automobile club from the San Joaquin Valley Tourist association. The highway is smooth and wide as a city boulevard and is a high gear road all the way.

When completed this will be one of the finest scenic drives on the American continent. The entrance into Yosemite valley will be made through a tunnel in the solid granite walls of the valley for a distance of four thousand feet and there will be porthole windows opening at intervals along the way to frame some of the startling views of the "enchanted valley." The new highway will be kept open all year and Yosemite and neighboring resorts will have additional country to draw upon for winter sports when snow and ice conditions are not the best on the floor of the valley.

There is no control on the road this year, and the work going on now does not interfere with travel in any way.

Club Reports on Sierra Passes

Recent storms have not effected the various Sierra Nevada passes, reports the Stockton office of the National Automobile club.

Carson pass is in exceptionally good condition; cars are making the trip without any difficulty. Reports state fishing is not very good in this section.

Ebbetts pass is also in good shape and is receiving a heavy flow of traffic.

The Sonora pass is open and in good condition. Streams in this section are reported as being low and clear, fishing good.

Yellowstone Opens June 20

June 20 marks the official opening of Yellowstone National park for the 1931 season. On and after that date full accommodations will be available, according to the touring department of the National Automibile club.

The western and northern entrances have been open for several weeks. While motorists have been able to drive through the park, only very limited accommodations have been available.

The customary spring reconditioning work is being carried on over all the roads in the park and they are expected to be in fine shape for the opening.

The Pinnacles Road In Excellent Shape

Road to the Pinnacles National monument, one of the chief points of interest of California's mission trails, is in excellent condition, according to the National Automobile club.

Borden Highway Open

Construction on the Borden highway between Byron and Stockton has progressed sufficiently to make it possible to again open the road, acording to the touring department of the National Automobile club. The surfacing of the main portion of the road has been completed leaving the shoulders to be filled in on either side. This work will be handled with a minimum of delay and inconvenience to traffic.

SEES HEAVY CLAIMS ON FUTURE BANKERS

American Bankers Association Official Declares That Banking Changes Creating Large Bank Systems Will Call for Broader Social Viewpoints.

Larger scale group or branch banking will inevitably bring a new era of banking organization and operations to the United States and bankers will have to develop "new conceptions, new administrative methods and new economic views," Rudolf S. Hecht, Chairman of the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association, recently told the members of the American Institute of Banking.

The institute is the educational section of the association and he emphasized the point that the new era in banking demanded "that we must step-up our education so that banking shall be fortified for new responsibilities."

What the Future Calls For

"We must broaden our social conception of banking," Mr. Hecht said. "Not only for the technical operations of the new banking must we fit ourselves, but both as individuals and an organized profession we must charge ourselves with serious consideration of the social problems that are involved. Already we hear murmurings and fears and doubts as to whether the changes that are coming about in banking in the extension of group and branch systems do not constitute the looming of a new financial menace, a monopolistic threat not only to the individual unit banker, but to the financial liberty of society in general. I am stating these things merely as facts that must be taken into consideration in our studies.

"Public opinion cannot be ignored by any business, least of all by banking, which is admittedly semi-public in character and is, therefore, subject to special supervision by the constituted authorities. If banking develops tendencies that give rise to public fears, we must so conduct ourselves as to reassure all doubts.

"For this is true,—that business succeeds only by serving society—that no business can permanently prosper which does not both render service to the public and at the same time convince the public that it is rendering that service. Banking, therefore, must take cognizance of what the public is saying of this new era in its development.

"It must be part of the technique of modern banking administration, whatever form our enlarged institutions take, to avoid the creation of monopolies, or even the appearance of such a centralization of financial power as to be able to exercise an undue influence over public or private finance or other lines of business. The public's right to the safeguards of fair competition must be observed.

Must Preserve Individual Initiative

"It must also be an item of management that individual initiative and opportunity shall be maintained. If America has outstripped other nations in the distribution of the benefits of its progress, it is due to the fact that there are no barriers of social caste or business tradition against advancement for character, ability, and initiative. American business has learned that it serves itself best by encouraging by every practical means individual ambition and initiative, and hurts itself most by repressing or neglecting them. Competition for efficiency, both within an organization and between organizations, will prevent any institution from long enduring in which maintenance of opportunity and recognition of initiative are not controlling principles of management. As heads of the greatest of our financial and industrial institutions stand men who started from the humblest of beginnings. Through all the grades of executive authority and reward stand men in positions in keeping, generally speaking, with their individual merits. I, personally, see no reason for fearing that the enlarged banking organization which the future may hold would necessarily supply future bank employees with any less opportunity for achievement than unit banking.

"Again, a major consideration of administration in any multiple form of banking organization must be its public relations in every community it touches. Its foremost consideration must be actually and visibly to serve the economic upbuilding of that community. No system will be long tolerated whose local members work, or are suspected as working, to draw economic strength from one place to enlarge the financial power of another. The local unit bank has always been part and parcel of the communities where it lives—and no system can last which does not make it a major principle of operating technique to serve, and not exploit, the communities into whose business lives it enters."

NEW SLANTING WINDSHIELD

ON THE NEW FORD TOWN SEDAN $630 F. O. B. Detroit, Freight and delivery, bumpers, spare tire, and special equipment are extra.

THE slanting windshield of the Ford Victoria won so much praise that a similar windshield is now standard on the new Ford Town Sedan. It emphasizes the Ford's flowing lines, adds distinction to an already distinguished car. The glass is Triplex—shatter-proof, of course.

The de luxe interior of the new Town Sedan deserves special mention. It is richly upholstered in fine durable cloth. The body is longer than formerly. Both seats are wider, the backs are higher and thicker, the rear seat is deeper. The rear-quarter windows may be lowered if desired.
